Chicago Drivers Vote to Call Off War Which Has Cost Millions of Dollars-Surrender Unconditionally.

long-drawn struggle when the department store drivers this afternoon voted 26 for and 3 against ending the strike.

There was a brave, despairing attempt of the minerity to continue the contest along the lines followed since April 7. but hungry, moneyicas men, without jobs and almost without prospects for jobs, and almost without prospects for jobs, carried the day.

By a referendum vote the railway express and lumber wagon drivers to-night followed the example of the department store men and voted to quit. With a formal ratification of the action taken by the unions when the joint council meets the real will have come. To morrow marries end will have come. To-morrow morning the drivers will seek reinstatement in their former thaces, and hundreds of them, it is expected, will be disappointed. It is an unconditional surrender. Involved in the vote of to-day were no terms of any hind. The men will try to make such terms as they can. There is no disposition among the employers, however, to take harsh advantage of their victory. Many of their reliable, competent men strace against their will, and most of these the employers will be glad to get hard.

The only concession that the men have gained by going back to work is in the case of the lumber drivers, the right to wear the union button. In the case of all citier unions the men seeking their old places is inly extee to the terms of the companion men had been provided for, and that the question of wearing the union teittan should be left to the decision of the individual employer.

CITY NATIONAL HELD $100,000 IN DEVLIN PAPER

The failure of the City National Bank of this city was due in a great measure to the fact that it held upwards of $100,000 of C. J. Devlin's paper, which is tied up in the recent failure of the First National Bank of Topeka, of which Mr. Devlin was the principal stockholder.

The only one other Kansas City bank that had held Devlin paper was the American National. C. R. Jones, president of the American National. Bank, stated today that the $55,000 of Devlin paper held at the time of the Topeka failure had been purchased since then from the American National Bank by its directors.

Its original capital was $250.00. The Comptroller of the Currency often ordered an examination of its business during the first year. Last winter the capitalization was cut to $200.006. A few months ago the capital was increased to $200.009.

WASHINGTON NOT SURPRISED AT INSTITUTION'S FAILURE.

Weste Building, 16th and F Streets.

Washington, July 20.—The failure of the City National Bank of Kansas City, official news of which was conveyed to the Comptroller of the Currency to-day in a telegram from Bank Examiner E. E. Ames, was not unexpected at the Treasury Department.

Information indicating that the bank was in trouble reached the Comptroller list week, when he learned that some of its drafts had gone to protest. He at once directed Examiner Ames, who was in Kansas, to go to Karsas City and make a complete examination.

Mr. Ames reported last Tuesday that the bank's officers were making an effort to liquidate through the clearing-house. Their efforts in this direction falled, however, and the Acting Comptroller, Mr. Kane, yesterday wired the examiner to inform the officers of the bank that they must meet certain requirements, and that, failing in this, the bank must suspend. Nothing further was heard from Ames until this morning, when he announced that the bank had closed its doors.

Mr. Kane, in a statement to-day, attributed the failure of the bank to the fact that the bank officers had discounted too much commercial paper held by C. J. Devlin, and the corporations he controls. Supplemental to this statement, the Comptroller made public the last report of the bank.

An interesting feature in connection with the report is that it shows that at the time it was made, the bank did not carry any loans in excess of the 10 per cent limit fixed by the national banking act.

the report is that it shows that at the time it was made, the bank did not carry any leans in excess of the 10 per cent limit fixed by the national banking act.

Within an hour after the announcement of the banks' failure applications for appointment as receiver began to pour into the Comptroller's office. Mr. Kane stated this evening that Examiner Ames would discharge the functions of receiver temporarily, and that after he has made a preliminary report on the bank's condition, a permanent receiver will be named.

He added that a Kanass City man would not be appointed, as he deems it wise to select for the receivership someone outside of that city, and not identified in any way with the collapsed institution.

been opened, and he placed it in my trousers pocket without counting the contents.

The Central District police are puzzled. Various theories have been advanced for the disappearance of the money.

One officer suggested that the victim might have worn pajamas, and while he was toesing and rolling in his couch the purse might have worked its way down until it rolled out on the bed.

Dale falled to give to the police the style of night-gear worn by him, and for that reason the suggestion did not receive further consideration.

Tale insists that he locked the door of his room with a bolt from the inside, making it impressible for anyone to enter without his knowledge. Should anyone have gained estrance to his room, however, the intruder, in order to find the money, would have had to place his hand on lucle.

Date told the police that he intended to leave the city. Meanwhile the police are investigating.

GOLD PROSPECTORS PERISH IN DEATH VALLEY.

Goldfield, Nev., July 28.—Anthentic information reached here to-day of the probable death of Earl Weller and E. M. Titus, formerly of Telluride, Colo., in the "Death Valley" country. The men were two of a party of prospectors who perished on a prospecting trip during the latter part of June.

The two left Rhyolite June 28, with John Mullen and others, on a prospecting trip through the Fineral Mountains, which skirt "Death Valley," and in the vicinity of which lies Walter Booti's mysterious mine. They were together until June 28, when first one and then the other of the party went in search of water.

Last Sunday an Indian brought Mullen into Rhyolits in a pitable condition, his mind deranged and his health completely shattered by the fearful ordeal through which he had passed. For several days he was unable to give a lucid account of his experiences, and not until to-day told full details of the awful trip. His account is, brefly, as follows:

The heat was intense and our sufferings were beyond description. On the night of the 28th we found a place that gave indications of water.

"After digging a hole several feet in the sond we got enough water to give femporary relief. That night we camped them, and next morning Weller started out in search of some landmarks that would give us an idea as to where we were He also hoped to find water holes.

"We waited several days for him to return and then Titus went out in search of him. For several days I was alone in camp, others of the party having separated from us. At last I determined to go in search of my friends, as the supply of water was entirely gorn.
